Fostering Positive Action

This is not only the school's 60th birthday but also Redding's 100th. Redding, now one hundred years old, is developing from an old mill town into a more exciting city. Redding has really been "making waves." The new shopping centers and businesses have helped to encourage the growth of Redding. The city has been rapidly changing. Our modernized logo is placed on the Redding Medical Center. It truly shows our city's vitality. Redding has reached its centennial!

The involvement of students, parents and staff in school was very encouraging. The students of Nova would like to thank all businesses, citizens, teachers, and the administration for their help and support. A joint effort has kept this school going for sixty years. Many people dedicate their time everyday to help the school year run smoothly. It is this dedication that "makes waves." Changes can only be brought forth by hard work and effort. Often times these people do not get the proper recognition that they deserve for their good works. The only thanks that they received is the change for the better in our school.

The class of 1990 is a very special one, and will make history as one of the best classes to pass through Shasta County. The students have learned moral and social standards from their teachers and peers. Even more important than academics, at times, it was necessary to establish stronger values and ideals in the freshmen year. As the students learn and grow, they will better understand the community and be able to become a valuable, working part of society.

Happy Birthday Nova and Redding!

Promoting Growth

Getting in shape is not only physical, but mental as well. People grow in many aspects. They learn, grow, and change. When they learn, they acquire knowledge that will be needed for their future. Learning helps a person to grow and mature. Most people here understood this and tried to promote growth by learning many new abilities. They helped people to expand their minds and face many new horizons.

Physical growth takes teamwork and time. Sports is often a big part of this growth. Sports teach people to pay attention to their physical needs, so they can stay in shape and grow properly. Sports develop endurance, stamina, and stability.

These things also help in other activities where teamwork is involved such as, student government and foreign languages. Student government requires energy and the ability to solve problems easily. If this is hard for the person to do, other people in the group will help them to grow and learn more. It requires endurance so that the people can help lead the school and stand in front of large audiences to give speeches. Learning foreign languages requires energy. People need to memorize each word and workout patterns that make it easier to learn. Foreign languages take teamwork. Teams can work together on correct pronunciations of words and quiz each other on verb tenses and vocabulary especially if their parents can't help them with the language. This makes it easier to learn. All this put together promotes changes of which most are positive. These changes were good for our school. They helped us to grow. The teachers lead us in this growth. That is why people at Nova were the leaders in "Promoting Growth."

Achieving Personal Goals

Whether it's an A on a major test or a touchdown on the football field, people achieve personal goals everyday. The class of 1990 has achieved many goals for this school as well as themselves.

Students raised a lot of money through the magazine sales. $18,801 dollars were raised during this ten day activity. More than the money though, it really showed that Nova had some great achievers who were willing to work. Nova's students have been exceptional about trying out for new things. It was nice to see the students encouraging each other to try out for cheerleading, sports, and student government offices. In order to succeed, people have to at least try. Nova's students have shown everyone, including themselves, that they can achieve anything that they set their minds on doing.

Students had different ideas about goals. Rhonda Snyder's feelings about how to approach goals were very simple. "I simply look at all perspectives and think about what it will take to accomplish it." Her major goal was to get rid of her shyness and to become a better student. Rhonda was a good example of how many of the students felt.

Another example of a student's idea towards goals came from Casey Stomps. He felt that it took a lot of practice in an area to achieve a goal. His pride came through when asked what goal he had accomplished that he was the most proud. "I was the most proud when I took fifth place at a national motorcycle race," Casey said. Students felt that goals were important to keep each other going through the year. In the future, they will continue to make their dreams come true by achieving personal goals.

Reaching Out To Others

None of the people at this school would have ever made it through the year without someone being there, someone to help them through trying times. That is what the people at Nova were always watching out for. The students felt a need to help people. We were caring and sensitive to the feelings of others. When someone here needed help, people picked up on that, and tried to help them through their problems. We were dedicated people who once started something, finished it. As friends, we knew that when people trusted us, we couldn't let them down. People here trusted each other. The students put their trust in each other knowing that the favors they did would be returned someday when they needed them.

Other students not only found the need to help one person, but found the need to help many people. For instance, Mr. Mike Martin, Dean of Students, developed a great activity called Leadership Day. It wasn't only a great way to spend a Saturday, but people learned how to build their self-confidence and become leaders. Another active group at school was "Just Say No." This group helped people to say no to drugs when the peer pressure from their friends could have easily persuaded them to say yes.

Groups like Future Homemakers of America (FHA) and Future Farmers of America (FFA) did just as their names stated. They prepared people for problems and careers they would come across in their futures.

These groups and more were the reasons why students made it through a great school year. The class of 1990 is a class that "Reached out to others."

Making The Right Moves

Nobody is perfect, but the class of 1990 is about as close as you can get. It takes time, dedication, and spirit to get to the top, and this year has been one of the best for Nova students. It took time to become the best; they had all the time in the world. Students dedicated all this time to Nova and spirit; they were very proud of their school and got involved. It was clear that the students knew they only got out of a school year what they put into it.

The activities were all dedicated to improving the skills and outlooks of students. They included academic and fun activities as well as sports. Sports activities, like basketball and volleyball, improved skills in coordination and physical abilities. Academic activities helped their minds to grow and mature. Fun activities gave them a chance to have a good time with their friends from school and release some energy.

Other activities did more than provide a good time. These activities included Leadership Day, "Just Say No", and magazine sales. At Leadership Day, students not only had fun, but learned how to cope with certain problems in their everyday lives. "Just Say No" helped people to say no to drugs and encouraged them to help their friends with similar problems. Magazine sales gave students a chance to "Turn on the Power". This meant that students gave it their all to raise money for their high school activities. It also helped some people to overcome the shyness that comes with this age group of students. But whether these activities were done by the students on their own or at school, all the activities helped students "Make the Right Moves."

Leaving Our Touch On NHS

Just looking at the students one could see their "true colors," purple, gold and white! The students had a great amount of pride, respect, and enthusiasm for their school and the activities included and associated with it. It was a spirit-filled year.

There seemed to be a closeness between the people of this 1990 class. They learned from each other and were proud of the relationships and goals that they established. The students were a close-knit family, and will continue to be even after they separate into the various schools.

Cheerleading, sports, and other activities helped the students to grow and learn. They realized the importance of teamwork, and the advantage they had if they all worked together; they also learned the importance of helping each other to get up the courage to try out for new activities.

Nova was a great experience, and the students will always remember it as a happy time in their school career. "Nova was fun with a lot of participation in school activities," Joy Smith said. Through participation, friends, teachers, and activities growth and maturing took place, and people were ready to leave Nova and continue their high school career.

The students are leaving Nova with a lot more than just a good reputation; they are leaving the school with new activities and clubs that Nova didn't have when the year began. The students are also leaving behind memories and the powerful touch of the class of 1990.

Activities

A Wave Of Energy

Activities provide a chance to break away from intellectual pursuits and allow time for some fun. A few of these activities were school dances, the powder-puff football game, the "Just Say No" club, and fund raisers, such as magazine sales.

A new activity to Nova was Leadership Day. The purpose of Leadership Day was to help students develop leadership skills and to try and help students to feel more confident about themselves.

"It also enables teachers to have a chance to experiment with fun teaching strategies," said Mr. Martin, "and it helps students to see adults in a different way." Leadership Day is an activity which is definitely "making waves" and shall for years to come.

Scholastic activities, however, were not the only activities to which students were drawn. Many sought personal entertainment outside of Nova.

Whatever activities were chosen, waves were made in an individual way.

1. Diana Casas, Hurley Baird, Dede Shaffer, Steve Harding, Mike Trisdale, and Brian Howell live it up at the dance. 2. Ron Price demonstrates his favorite activity.

Leaders Of The Future

Eleven students who were interested in being leaders of the school gave their speeches on October 20, 1986. The people who were running anxiously awaited to see if their speech would be the most convincing. The elected officers were Ubon Bascom-Commissioner of Finance, Cammie Lee-Commissioner of Activities, Kenny Tze-Commissioner of Athletics, Heidi Fitzpatrick-Commissioner of Communications and Donald Spurgeon-Commissioner of Records.

Many of the activities were planned by Cammie Lee. Some of the activities included beginning a Students Against Drunk Driving (S.A.D.D.) club, having a pep squad, and having a student radio station during lunchtime so that the students could take turns being disc jockies. Also a change was made to make dances longer by starting them earlier.

Mr. Jim Decker, Student Activities Director, wanted an activities committee this year. The committee consisted of the people who ran for an office and didn't make it and other selected students who wanted to be involved. The purpose of this committee was to brainstorm activities that could be done during the course of the year. "Being involved in activities can make school a lot more fun," commented Mr. Decker.

Sparks Of Excitement

On September 11, the old gym came alive with 58 girls warming up, practicing cheers, and waiting very impatiently for the tryouts to begin. The eleven judges, which consisted of teachers and students from previous years, were looking for enthusiasm, athletic ability, charisma, and voice projection in deciding which girls would hold the cheerleading positions waiting for them.

On Friday, twenty-one people could be seen running through the halls screaming to their friends, "I made it!" For those lucky girls, the next three days were filled with learning many new cheers and working as a team. On Thursday, they were ready to cheer their teams to victory.

The girls practiced three afternoons a week for an hour and a half to two hours preparing for the afterschool Thursday games. It was important to be enthusiastic and to get the crowds involved in the game.

Some of the factors in deciding to become a cheerleader are to help lead the school in spirit and to cheer on the football players. "I'm glad to be able to share in the Panther spirit!" quotes white cheerleader Christie Wilde.

Cheerleading is easily summed up into one word, "FUN!".

During the many hours the girls practiced they worked on organizing themselves to work in unity. They also dedicated their time on making up the moves and words they used to encourage the players.

The squads had different uniforms that ranged in price anywhere from a hundred and ten dollars to a hundred and thirty.

Seven girls were placed on the Gold and White squads with six on Purple.

When asked why they wanted to be a cheerleader Beth Cass responded "Because I'm a spaz and I like to yell." Jennifer Valles stated, "I wanted to be a cheerleader because I like to watch the guys run up and down the court."

Winners Pig Out

Nova Students tried again to sell the most magazine subscriptions in the eleven day long event that started on October 24, and ended November 3.

The rewards were many for those who were fortunate enough to get people to buy magazines. Different small, round, and colorful weeples, that most students chose to wear around their wrists, were given away when a person sold a certain amount. All students who received a pig weeper were allowed permission to pig out on all the ice cream they could eat.

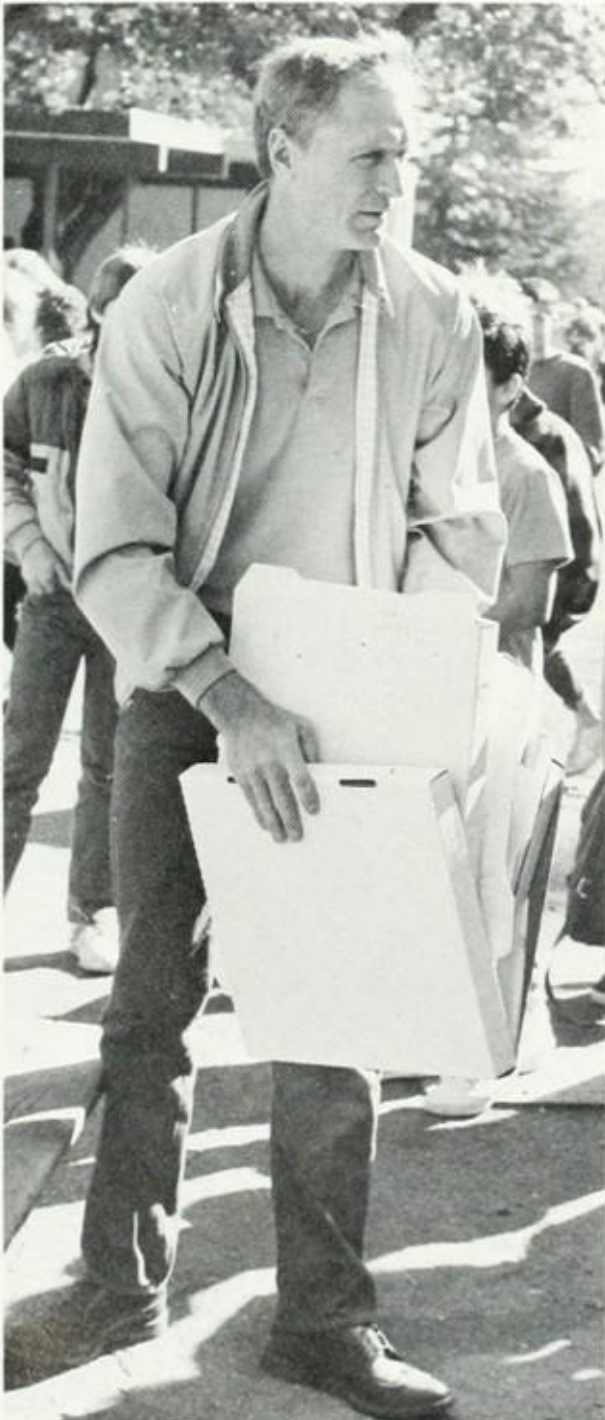

Julie Meissner was the top salesperson with 21 sales worth $209.85. Rita Suchanek came in second with 11 sales worth $139.46. Miss Sally Lewis' second period class received a pizza party during lunch one day for being the top salesclass accumulating $1,170 in sales.

We Advance To The Dance

The lights flashed and the music blared. Students arrived at the dance. As the gym filled up fast, the disc jockey played the latest dance music.

For a small part of the school a dance was a new thing. Christina Montgomery, who had never been to a dance before, said, "It was fun, and I want to go to the next one." Teri Putnam said, "Nova's dances are so much better than junior high!"

The dances lasted from 8 until 11, and cost only two dollars at the door with a student body card. A dance was a good place to make friends and say, "Hi," to familiar faces. It was one of the things that brought almost the entire student body into a social situation.

Looking Toward New Horizons

"Toward New Horizons" was the challenging motto for the members of this F.H.A. chapter. It stated that their contributions to society, to home, and to community life today would influence the kind of homes that they would have in the future. They also learned that the family life of members would influence their community, their employment, and everything around them.

F.H.A. sponsored many activities. The organization held the first dance at Nova, a cookbook sale, a powder puff football game, and Thanksgiving baskets to name a few. The Thanksgiving baskets were made up by homeroom classes at Nova and were given to the families of Nova students. Mrs. Virginia Erickson, the advisor of this F.H.A. chapter, was very proud of their efforts saying, "I am very proud of the efforts of Nova F.H.A. in their community service projects. Their good attitude and enthusiasm make them a great group to work with as they learn skills for leadership, citizenship, individual family living, and the workplace."

Striving For A Better Future

The Future Farmers of America organization, FFA, was a club where students enrolled in a vocational agricultural class could learn to develop leadership skills and how to cooperate or work as a group. FFA was about 90 members strong.

FFA competed in Field Day at Shasta College. They also competed in project, sectional, and state competitions. To earn money for their activities, FFA sponsored a dance and held a plant sale at Nova and the other high schools.

The officers of FFA were President-Brian Beck, Vice-President-Suzanna Walton, Secretary-Dale Burton, Treasurer-Glenn Brushett, Reporter-Donna Coffey, and Sentinel-Dean Maylott. Mr. Peter Houtman, who has taught at Nova for two years, was the instructor of FFA. This was his twelfth year that he was involved with this organization. He said, "They are an excellent group of young people who are willing to learn." Brian Beck, the President of FFA, added, "FFA is really fun because you get to go on trips, take an animal to the fair, and learn all sorts of things." They were an enthusiastic group that "Strived for a Better Future."

Classes Competed To Be Super

Nova has had many competitive events, but one stood out among the rest, the Super Class competition. This contest, organized by Mr. Mike Martin, was made up of many events that fourth and fifth period classes competed in at lunch time. The events included volleyball, a toilet paper wrap (where four people wrapped another person completely in toilet paper), and an orange relay (where eight people passed oranges back and forth under their chins). By competing, each class received a sum of points, depending on how they did in the event. During the last week of competition the four classes with the highest scores were chosen as finalists. Their past scores were forgotten and three final days of competition took place to see who would be the Super Class. One of the final events was where the class lined up in a single-file line, put brown paper bags over their heads, and threw a volleyball at a garbage can a few feet away, hoping to make it in. The final winners were, fourth place-Mrs. Debbie King, third place-Mrs. Phyllis Skelly, second place-Mr. Ed Wilson, and the class that got to wear the S's on their chests was Mr. Bill Asnicar's fourth period algebra class. Each class received a plaque made by Mr. Ed Wilson, and $150 to first place, $100 to second place, and $75 to third place. The money was given to the class to do whatever they wanted as long as it had some educational merit.

Drama began as a way for people to express themselves religiously. Early man worshipped by way of imitating nature. He would make motions to signify what he wished things would do. For example, he would leap into the air and cry, "Grow, grain, grow!" and expect that the grain would follow his steps and grow quickly. From these imitations of nature, came dances, and then stories and dialogues.

There is drama in almost all cultures. Chinese drama and the Japanese Kabuki drama are intended for a popular audience, while Japanese No plays contain rituals and ceremonies. Indian drama is also divided into two parts: the outdoor festival which celebrates the lives of kings who became gods, and the palace drama which is religious and poetic. Ancient Greek drama has had more of an influence on the course of modern playwriting than the drama of any other culture, Greek plays were either tragedies or comedies. The main theme of Roman drama was the life of Christ, and performances were given on church holidays. American drama is widely diversified, and actors can play a wide variety of roles. Shakespeare is often performed, but musicals are also quite popular in the United States.

Drama at Nova is an introduction to the world of theater, its history, famous names, and places. It gives the students a chance to express themselves in various ways such as acting, make-up, simple set construction, costuming, and other aspects of drama.

Drama is a class which is available in most schools and is often quite popular. Drama is not just for people who want to act, but also for people who want to learn to express themselves better or overcome shyness. Drama is a class for everyone.

What! Another Deadline?

A lot of classes come through Nova, and we didn't want to just blend in; we wanted to stand out and be recognized for all the great things we are. This is why we chose "Making Waves" as our theme. We are making positive changes (waves); we are the class of 1990!

When we joined the yearbook staff, we knew it would involve some brainwork and imagination, but we had no idea how much. We even thought there would be no homework, an easy class. Boy, were we wrong! Believe it or not, at least fifteen hours goes into every double page spread. It drove us crazy running around getting interviews and finding the right person for a special picture to go on a particular page. We spent our lunch time, some of our Saturdays, and many hours after school doing this. "I get quite a lot of cooperation from my yearbook staff," Miss Sally Lewis said, and then added, "I'm fairly tolerant, but I expect them to do what they have to do, be responsible and be self-motivated, or I have no tolerance for them."

But despite all the hard work, we managed to have fun doing the book. Karalee vonSeggern expressed her feelings by saying, "Yearbook has been a wonderful experience for me, and getting to meet new people has been the best part." We hope you love the book as much as we do.

Capturing The Year On Film

The yearbook photography class was responsible for capturing the year on film; they had to make sure they had taken pictures of sports, special events, groups, staff, and stages of the reconstruction project.

Fun and hard work go into the making of a yearbook. Mr. Jim Sehon's photography class put many hours into taking, developing, and printing all the necessary pictures for the construction of our yearbook.

Mr. Sehon chose his all important yearbook photography class out of four classes by how well they performed during the first two weeks of school.

The yearbook photography class is always challenged by the yearbook class to keep up with the demands for pictures. Another aspect of the class is free time after school is usually cut short due to the amount of time spent taking pictures of special events, but even with these added pressures and time commitments the class had time for fun and a pizza break now and then.

The photography class along with the yearbook class managed to put out an award winning high school yearbook.

Being on the Panther's Growl newspaper staff takes a lot of hard work and determination. There were fifteen students who tried their hardest to put out the best newspaper the school had ever had.

The steps to putting out the Panther's Growl were to first learn how to write the stories correctly and find the right information. Computer operators put the stories through the computer and printed them. Editors cut and pasted them onto the layout. They then sent everything to the printing company, and 1400 copies were made for students to enjoy reading. This process took place every month. Mr. Bob Walker, newspaper advisor, had set a goal for this year. He wanted the paper to make a better appearance and strive for more accuracy.

"Although it was a lot of hard work, it was fun. I'm glad I took this class, because I've met a lot of new friends" summed up Lisa Pierce.

Students Are Leaders

This is the first year an activity like Leadership Day has taken place. Mr. Mike Martin tried this once before at another school and he said it didn't take-off as well as it did here. "Originally Leadership Day was to get the kids enthused about being at Nova. We had so much fun, so I thought I would keep it up," said Mr. Martin.

So that is how it started. Leadership Days have dealt with peer-pressure, learning to deal with adults, and other interesting topics. "The idea is to learn stuff and be yourself, be positive, and share your feelings," said Mr. Martin. "Kids learn from other kids," is Mr. Martin's theory. Leadership Day builds self-confidence more than anything else. Mr. Martin even received a letter from a thankful parent saying what an effect he and his leadership activity had had on her daughter and Leadership Day had helped her as a parent too.

When Stacy Barnett was asked how this activity had helped her, she said, "Leadership Day lets you open-up, and it makes you feel like you have a lot of friends." Most will agree that Leadership Day was a fun learning experience.

Music Makes The World Go Round

The Nova music program included three choirs. They were instructed by Mr. Dan Neece, Mr. Dave Nigro, and Mr. Ken Putnam. They tried to focus on reading music and singing in harmony. For a lot of people, this was their first year in a choir, but some had been in choir last year.

The choirs sang all different types of music such as classical and jazz, as well as today's popular hits. They were divided into sections ranging from high voices-sopranos to low voices-bases.

Each choir performed at many different festivals including the Redding Choir Festival, Redding Jazz Festival, and the Santa Cruz Jazz Festival. Mr. Dan Neece's choir also rode on a float in the Redding Yuletide Parade and sang carols.

Mr. Ken Putnam, who had a choir of approximately 36 people said, "They sing very well and they're a nice bunch of kids." Anne Pelote, of Mr. Neece's choir said, "Even though we're a small choir, (17 people), our terrific director, Mr. Neece, hopes we can blow all other choirs away." Mr. Neece boasted, "They have a lot of potential and will be an asset to the Enterprise Choir; they're an energetic and talented group." For all the choirs, this was an exciting year to get involved.

Band Hits A High Note

The bands performed several times this year. One of the first performances was the Christmas Concert on December 15th. All three of the bands performed together. Most of the students enjoyed performing in their nicest clothes. As Heidi Branlund said, "It is fun being in front of all those people and getting all that attention."

Band members must practice their instruments almost every day for about an hour to achieve the skill level they have. Most students have been playing their instruments for at least three years and are very dedicated.

At the beginning of the year, the band students have never played together as a group and don't know each other, but when the time comes to give their first performance, the band is like one big family.

Waves Of Christmas

Christmas carols, holly, trees, gifts, and snow, that's what most people think of when the holiday season is mentioned; but here at Nova it's a different story. People can be seen during fourth and fifth period classes sprawled out on the floor, racking their brains for creative ideas. This is the season of the traditional Christmas door decorating contest. The prizes were points for students' fourth or fifth period classes toward the Super Class contest. First place was awarded to Mr. Ed Wilson's woodshop class. Room 203, Mrs. Julie Ostendorf's personal growth class took second, and Mrs. Cheryl Dozier's math class in room 122 received third.

However, Christmas couldn't be all competition even at Nova. That's why on December 15, at 7:30 p.m., Nova choir and band performed in the Nova High School Auditorium. These talented students showed Nova's Christmas spirit with a wave of music.

Royalty Is Spotlighted

Everything involved with Valentine's Day happened February 13. Pictures were taken of sweethearts and friends all through the lunch periods. Students bought roses for $1.50, carnations for $1.00, and Val-o-grams for 35¢ for two days before they were to be delivered during a very exciting 7th period on the 13th.

The best dance of the year happened this night as well. It was a dance where all the sweethearts got together. On top of everything that happened at the dance, the winners of the King and Queen election were announced. The finalists for King were: Brian Rhodes, Brian Seamans, Jason Sehon, Brad Lincoln, Kenny Tze, Eric Anderson, Dayne Kendrick, and Mike Dunbar. The finalists for Queen were: Ubon Bascom, Amy Kimbrough, Jennifer Valles, Karen Henderson, Heather Barbee, Becky Tillman, Gina Dias, and Susan Grimes. It was a tough choice of who to vote for, but the winner for King was Mike Dunbar, "I was surprised, wow!", he exclaimed. The winner for Queen was Ubon Bascom, "I was full of excitement and very happy that I got elected for Queen." Mike and Ubon shined bright in their spotlight.

If Lockers Could Talk . . .

"Ouch!" said locker #254. "I wish these freshmen wouldn't be so hard on us lockers. I mean everyday we are banged into, slammed, engraved upon, and sometimes they even cover up our insides with stickers that cannot be removed, but some of us have been lucky over the years. We have nice boarders who decorate us really cool looking and worship us until they leave the school. Why shouldn't they? If the freshmen didn't have us they'd have had to lug their books around everyday for the entire school year."

This is what could be heard all over the halls at Nova after school hours. The lockers would either be complaining or bragging about how clean they were kept.

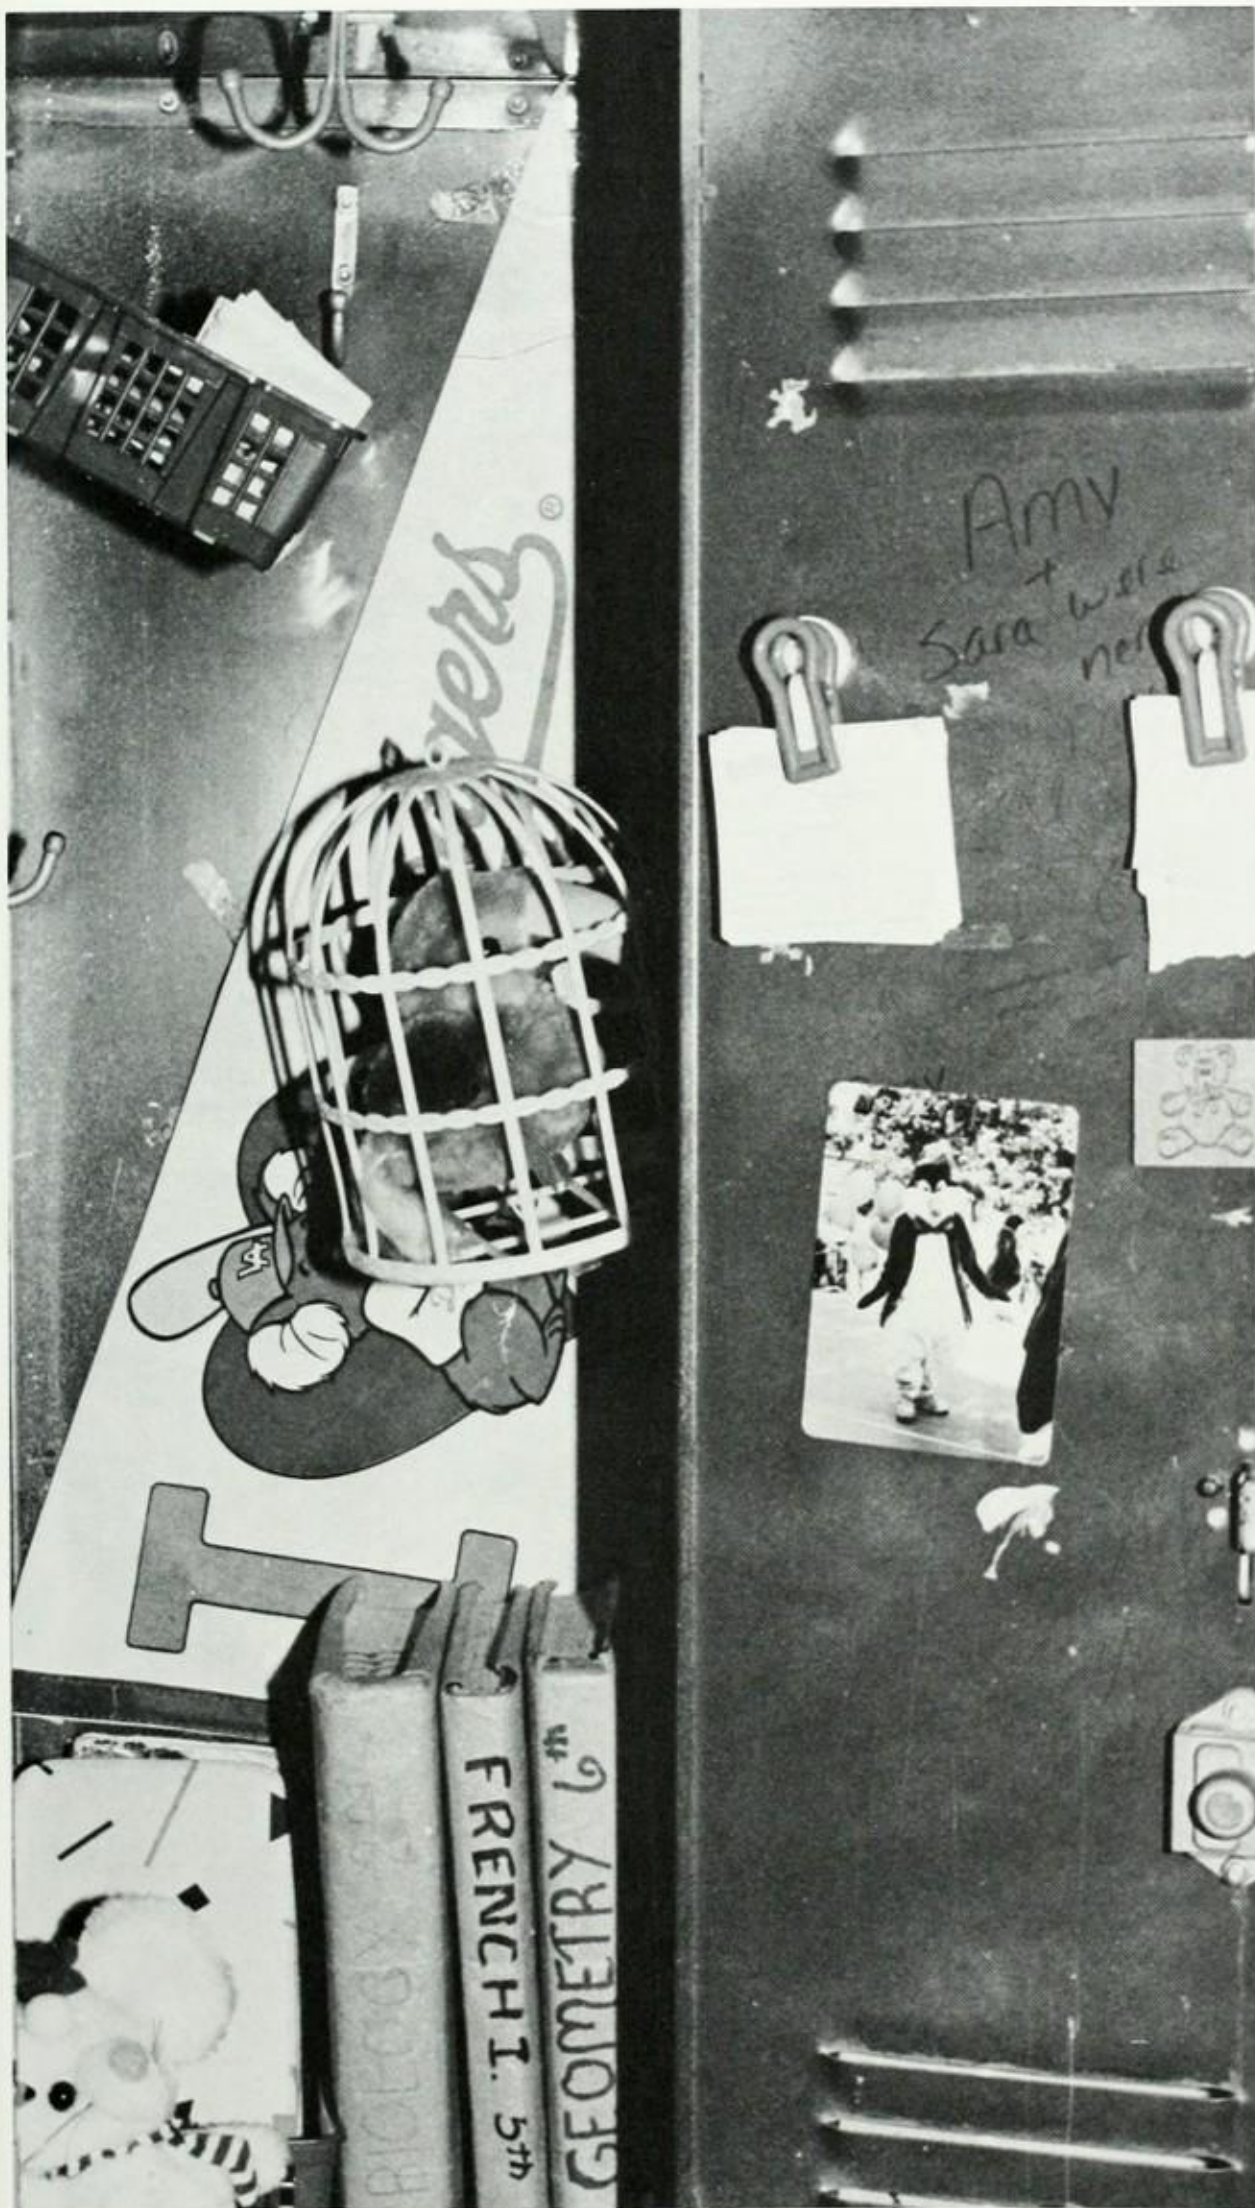

All lockers at Nova had a touch of class. When you look at a Nova locker, you could almost immediately describe the person's attitude towards school life.

Students Say No To Drugs

Some people think the best drug education programs are the ones that don't talk about drugs, but the Just Say No Club thinks differently. They believe in helping other people help themselves by education. Nova's Just Say No club has already participated in many events to support that belief. They have sent speakers to intermediate schools to try and prevent kids from starting to use drugs and help the ones who have already begun using them. Their speakers have also gone to city council to make people more aware of the drug problem. Even though this is the first year Just Say No has been here at Nova, they have already begun to make waves.

Just Say No also took part in Reach America, a project designed to educate teenagers about the harmful effects of drugs, so that they could teach younger kids the same. Michelle Todd, one of the participants of the two day program said, "It gave me more self-confidence, like standing in front of a crowd and making me feel like I could help other people with their drug-type problems." All the people who passed the test given at the end of the program became peer counselors. The Reach America program was truly about helping others.

Just Say No has accomplished a lot. Mr. Jay Cushnie and Mrs. Normetta Muir, the club's advisors, along with club organizers Jennifer Beck, Jennifer Fleming, Phyllis James, and Kayla Walker were all responsible for getting meetings together, sending speakers out, and running the concession stands at Nova's football games. Mr. Cushnie closed by saying, "I admire the Nova students who use the opportunity of Just Say No to help them with their understandings of drug use and supporting their ability to stay away from drugs."

JUST SAY "NO!"

Alcohol and drugs and "coke",
The marijuana some folks smoke,
All begin as some big joke.

Not withstanding,
The idea, "They're mind expanding!"
(Then all too soon, become demanding.)

A habit once begun with "class",
A look into the looking-glass,
Reveals an image quick to pass!

A tale the addict's tongue can tell,
Sickness, grief, "not feeling well",
The "highs" that were "too short a spell"

Money, poured right down the drain!
A body sometimes racked with pain
"Just listen to the folks complain!"
(All with good cause!)

And as I pause

I rather snicker,
For I recall a bumper sticker,
"My other car is up my nose!"
(It's more a pity, I suppose!)

I count the loss
It's hard to take!
The foolish actions some folk make,
With health and fortune both at stake.

Not to mention,
Some things done, without intention,
Minds once filled with great invention.

Now corrupt, filled with greed,
Crime and violence meet their need,
Keen minds altered with junk like "speed"
O, America! Take heed!

America, the land of the free and brave!
Be not the land of the cocaine slave!

There's a "party epidemic"
leaving the drunk and lifeless in it's wake.

Who are lazy, spineless,
Even mindless!

O, I find this hard to take!

O, youth and young folk in your prime,
This devastation is a crime!
Could I, but teach you, with this rhyme,

To just say, "NO"?

Verle Elizabeth Davis

2. Ida Vigil, Jennifer Fleming, and Kayla Walker take control of the meeting. 3. Mrs. Normetta Muir shows Rose Northington and John Decker where to sign up for working in the concession stand. 4. Mr. Jay Cushnie makes his point by telling an amusing story.

very special group.

The Wave Makers

Students at Nova are a very special group. We are all about the same age, but there are many different kinds of people here. We come from 30 different schools around the area. At the beginning of the year, we don't know very many people, but by the end of the year, we have made a bunch of new friends.

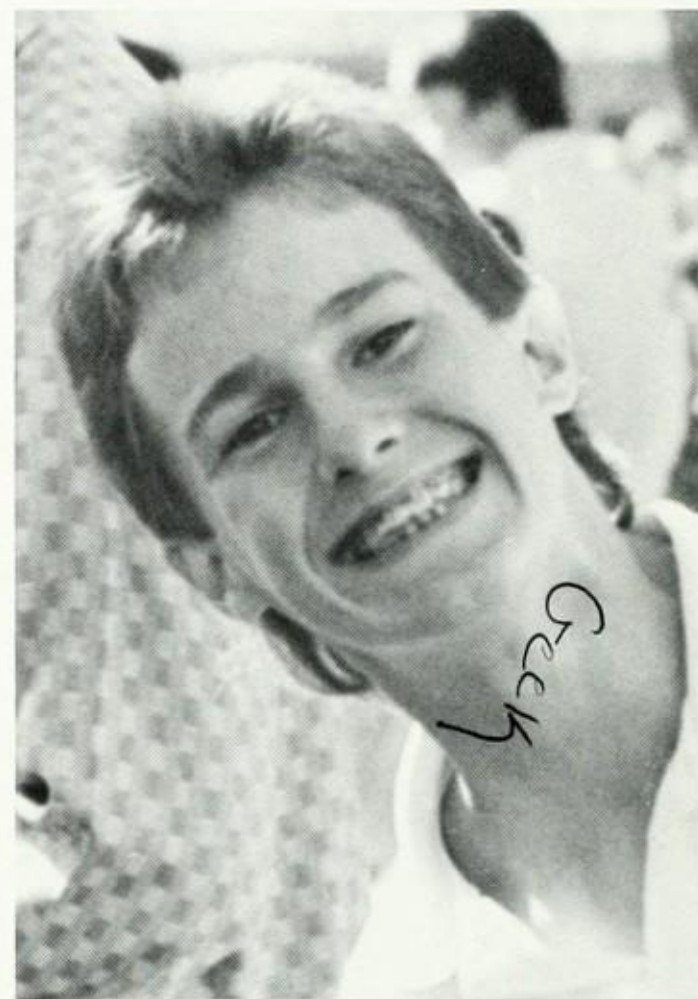

Nova is a unique school in that it contains all freshmen in the district. Students come to Nova from schools as close as Sequoia and Parsons and as far away as Indian Springs.

Most students enjoy Nova because of the wide variety of activities there are to become involved in.

The class of 1990 is one of the best that Nova has ever seen. We have the best athletes, the best grades, and the best self-discipline. The things we did this year have affected and changed Nova in many positive ways.

Fashion In Action

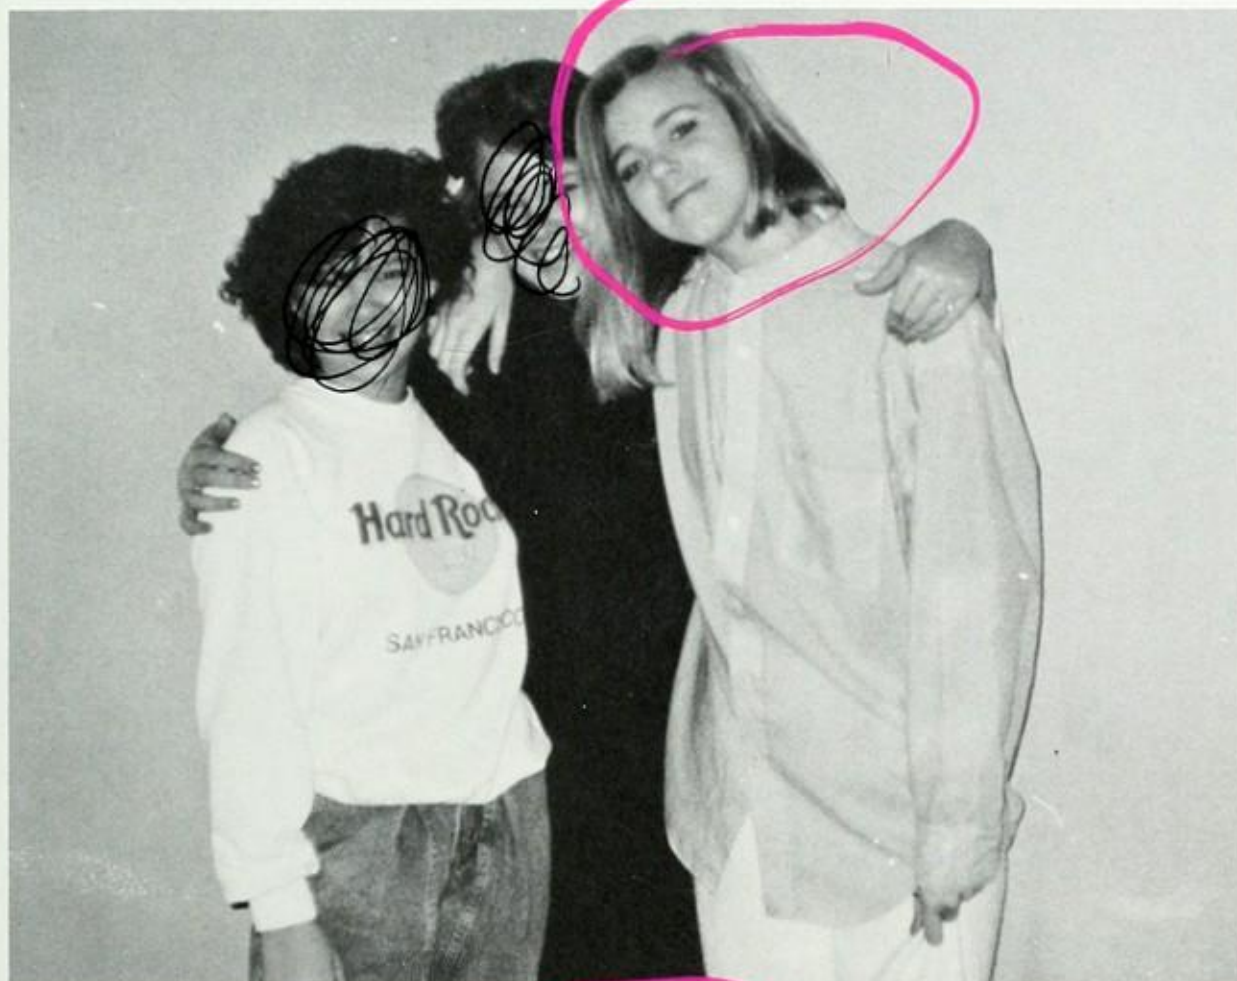

Fashion made a statement this year like never before. Bold fashions had a felicitous look. People had their own unique style that reflected their personality.

A daring few went all out and changed their hair as often as their shoes. Hair color ranged from blond to pink. Clothes came from every color of the rainbow. Pastels were worn by great numbers. Sweaters and sweatshirts kept many a person warm during the cold fall and winter days. The color black added depth to the school. Earth tones added a rugged look.

The students created an interesting array of shapes and colors. Fashion took a new turn, and all the students caught the wave.

STAFF

The Wave Of Assistance

Nova's staff is a wonderful group of people. It is not only the teachers, but also the maintenance crew, cafeteria workers, counselors, and the office staff all working together, that help make Nova the wonderful school that it is.

The school could not function without the staff. Just imagine what it would be like if all the teachers decided to stay home one day. All of the students would be running wild in the halls and things would be completely out of control. If we didn't have the cafeteria and office staff, there would be no food and the phones would be ringing with no one to answer them.

The staff at Nova has taught us many things. We have learned how to build self-confidence and how to deal with adults. The teachers taught us the things that they were required to and also many lessons about life through stories about their experiences when they were our age and older.

We would like to thank all of Nova's staff for helping us to have such a great year.

Nova's Top Four

This school is run by four very important men: Dr. Joseph Appel, Superintendent of the Shasta Union High School District; Mr. Don Demsher, Principal; Mr. John Bunton, Vice-Principal; and Mr. Mike Martin, Dean of Students and Head Counselor.

Dr. Appel doesn't work at Nova but at the district office. He is the supervisor of all five of the high schools in the Shasta Union High School District. The five schools are Nova High School, Shasta High School, Central Valley High School, Enterprise High School, and Pioneer High School.

Mr. Demsher is the principal of Nova. He is responsible for deciding what classes will be available each year and what the requirements are to be able to take each class. He supervises all of the teachers and other staff.

Mr. Bunton assists Mr. Demsher with all of his responsibilities, along with being in charge of discipline. He tries to stop problems before they start.

Mr. Martin is the Head Counselor and Dean of Students. He assists Mr. Bunton with discipline. He also has some activities of his own, such as Leadership Day. This is Mr. Martin's first year at Nova.

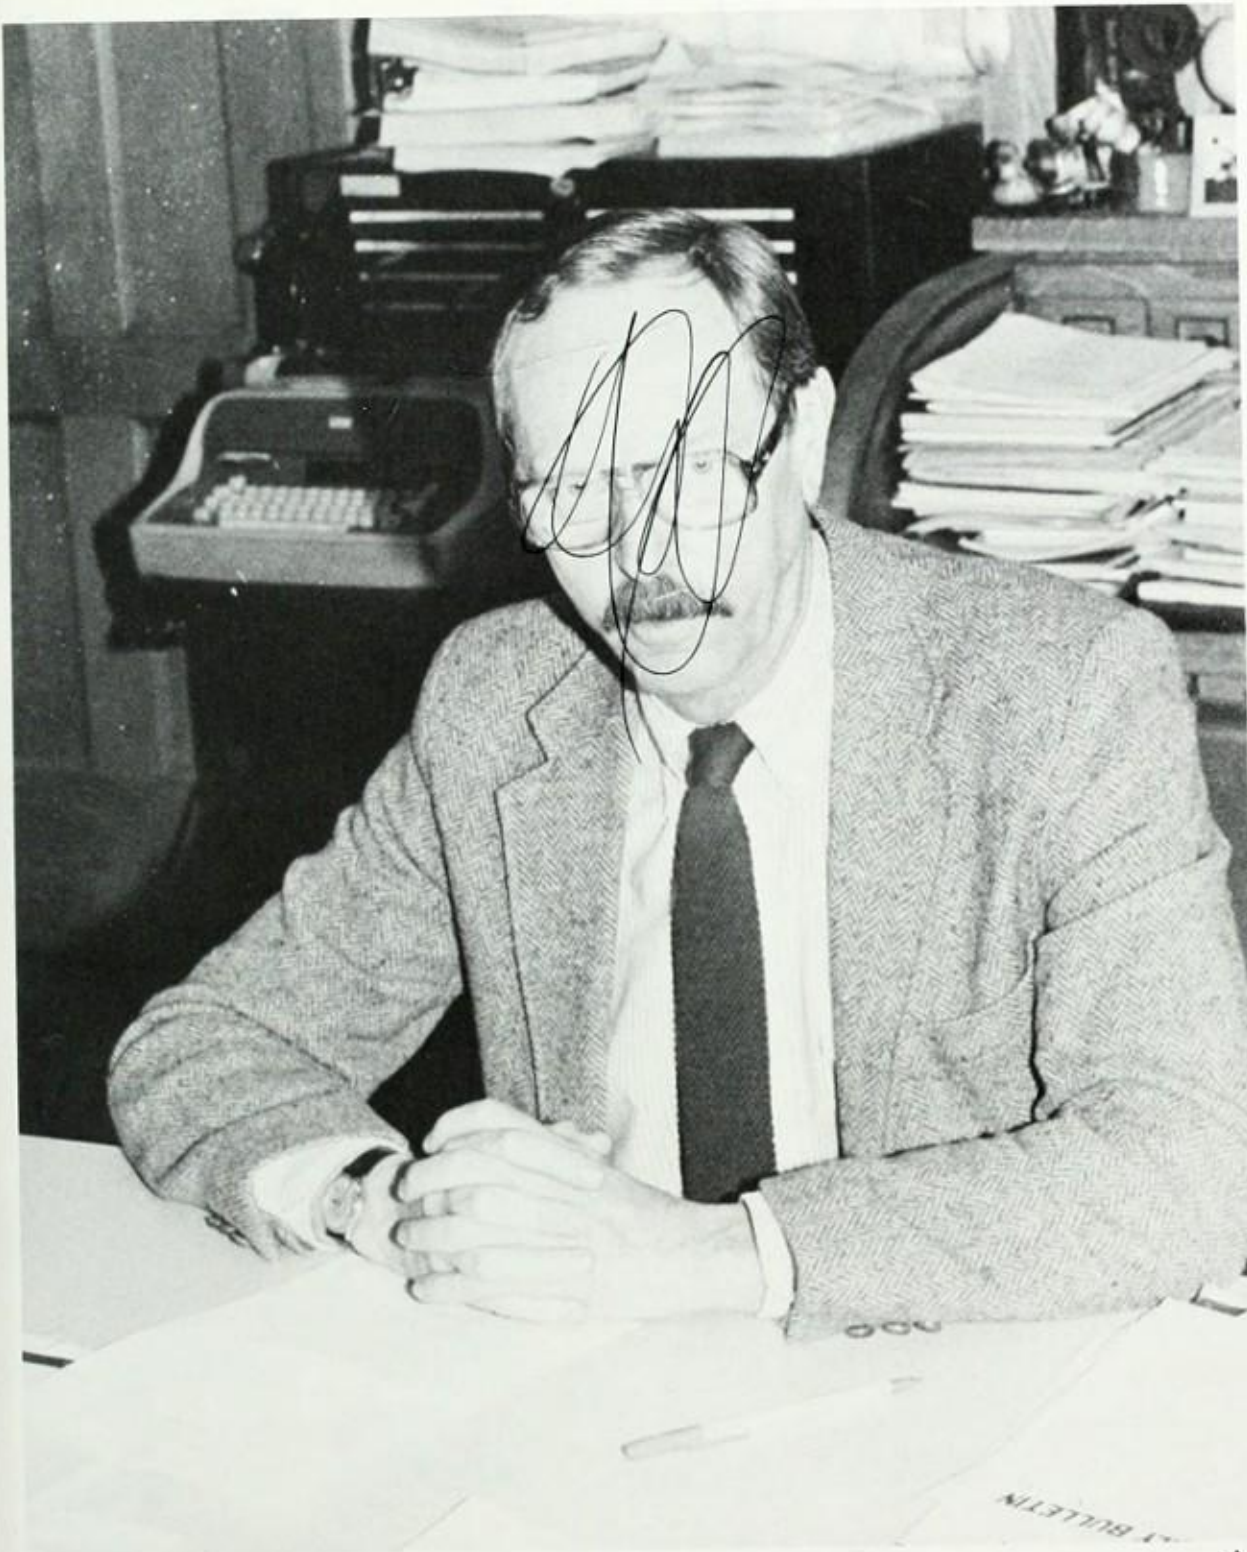

We at Nova should be very grateful that we have such a wonderful administration who cares about what happens to the students.

The secretaries and para-professionals at Nova do many good things for this school. The school could not run without the secretaries. The secretaries gave out bus passes, put notices in the school bulletin, sent call slips to students, took phone messages for students, enrolled new students, kept track of appointments, and took care of visitors at the school as well as all their other responsibilities. The secretaries include two secretaries in the main office, two in the counseling center, one in the attendance office, one in the health clerk's office, and the school typist.

The para-professionals worked very hard this year also. They assisted teachers in the classroom, helped students to learn, and corrected papers so that the teachers would have more time to spend with the students. The teachers who had the benefit of a para-professional said it made their job much easier.

Extra Work Pays Off

Imagine once a month having to do the cooking, washing the dishes, or cleaning the halls as a chore like you do at home. Now imagine doing these things everyday. Maybe sharing the work might make those of you who don't already, appreciate the maintenance crew and the cafeteria staff.

Two shifts of nine people make up the maintenance crew, working day and night to keep this school together. They do more than just clean, but also fix lockers and turn on the heaters in the morning, and many more things we don't see. More work is done by them in one day than any of us do in a month.

Since Nova is under reconstruction; additional work had to be done. Everything was moved from the classrooms; desks, chairs, and filing cabinets. Additional cleanup was done after the construction crew finished with their work.

Mr. Mike Hobbs, maintenance supervisor, worked as a middleman between the contractor and Mr. Demsher to keep the work flowing and the school functioning as smoothly as possible.

Another service taken for granted by students is the food service. How many times have you heard someone complain about the food in the cafeteria? Well, that's a matter of opinion. It's been said that Nova serves the best food in the Shasta Union High School District, and the staff worked hard preparing this food in their new kitchen. There is always breakfast and lunch available to the students without fail everyday.

One Step Ahead

This was the first year that biology was offered. Because students and parents of accelerated students wanted to get the basics out of the way, in order to have more advanced classes in the last two years of high school, Nova decided to offer this elective. The parents and students also wanted this class, because they wanted to be in the best possible position to compete for the few college spots available. Sharp and capable students must start young to work for the place in society they seek. Mr. Malin Lowe said, "The needs of these special ability students must be met if we wish them to assume their proper place in society. This class provides that extra giant step along with geometry and foreign language to challenge and help the students to achieve their potential."

1. Marie Alford, Beth Cass, and Brad Huskey work hard to finish their assignment.
2. Kevin Woodruff decides that maybe he doesn't want to be a surgeon.
3. Mr. Lowe and Joy Smith spend a long period looking at an amoeba.

Ashland Actors Visit Nova

The Honors English classes and selected students from other English classes were well entertained in Room 210 when two actors, Bob Barnett and Peter Temple, from the Ashland Oregon Shakespearean Festival visited on December 9.

The two actors performed various acts from Macbeth, The Tempest, and A Midsummer Night's Dream. The actors amazed the audience with their performance, humor, and stage combat skills.

Bob Barnett has been studying acting for nine years and thoroughly enjoys his work. He has been with the Oregon Shakespearean Festival for a year and hopes to work there again. Peter Temple has performed in various productions at Contra College. It was his first year with the Oregon Shakespearean Festival school tour program.

The students enjoyed talking to the actors firsthand and asking them questions about their profession.

1. Try doing this sometime. Bob Barnett shows his unique ability.
2. Bob Barnett and Peter Temple battle it out.
3. Bob Barnett and Peter Temple answer questions asked by the student audience.

Preparing For The Future

The Home Economics department has helped many students at Nova. The students who took classes from this department learned how to keep themselves healthy through better nutrition. They also learned skills, such as child care and infant care which would help them to become better parents. They also went on field trips and were given information on how to become better consumers. Most importantly, the students learned how to look and feel better about themselves and how to build that self-confidence.

H.E. was definitely considered an important class. It prepared students with life-time survival skills for well-ordered individual family living, and for a productive and satisfying worklife. Says Mrs. Virginia Erickson, "I would strongly recommend that every student take a Home Economics class to become more effective as family members, future parents, employees, and individuals."

1. R.O.P. student teaches Joyce Travis and Stacy Ciulla the secrets of salad-making. 2. Shelly Duncan and Tara Gordon learn that exercise can be fun if you put your mind to it. 3. After a long day, the Home Economics class makes their way back to Nova from their field trip to the Red Lion.

Trading Places

Students weren't the only ones who showed school spirit. One of the ways teachers showed their school spirit was by dressing up for Halloween, 50's day, and other various dress-up days.

On Halloween the school chose the best dressed teacher. Miss Sally Lewis won first prize for her Indian costume. The costume was complete with beads, feathers, and head-dress.

The staff reminisced the past on 50's day. By digging in boxes and scrounging through closets, they came up with a lot of unique and authentic outfits. With many of the staff and students dressed in their old-time finery, one would think it was the 1950's all over again.

Teachers and students both enjoyed breaking away from the norm and having some fun.

1. Miss Sally Lewis, best dressed teacher on Halloween, says, "How." 2. Ms. Marsha Sinclair knows how to clown around. 3. Mr. Mike Martin was one of many greasers on 50's day.

Leaving Nova With New Experiences

Nova offered a variety of foreign languages to its students. There were 11 classes of Spanish, 5 classes of French, and one German class.

The language teachers made learning fun and relatively easy. Through student theaters, pinata parties, and other cultural experiences, the students could get away from the traditional book learning and add some excitement to the classes.

Language was an interesting experience where students accepted the challenge of learning another language because they felt that it was important for them to be able to communicate with people from different parts of the world.

1. Lisa Yee, Brian Rhodes and Jeff Schwagerl learn a lot through Spanish theaters. 2. Sra. Skelly tells the students what she thinks of non-participation. 3. Cindy Harmon makes the final break during a "cultural experience."

Nova Gets A Facelift

Nova was demolished, wrecked, and tormented all for the benefit of future Nova students. The reason was to bring Nova up with state codes and to prolong the life of the building. The bid for the job went to Gifford Construction. Elevators and ramps were constructed for the handicapped. Halls were built so that they could be closed off in case of fire. The school received new plumbing and electric work. The roof was replaced with a new metal one that looked like tile. New flooring and window frames were put in. Out of the $2,000,000 received, $250,000 of it was spent for new furniture and equipment. Several classrooms were created including a computer room.

Although this was done for the benefit of teachers and students, it did cause an inconvenience. Classes had to be relocated, students were asked to clean out their lockers and take everything home on long weekends. Teachers put up with noise that continually disrupted the classroom. Even though the reconstruction had its bad points, students to come will be able to enjoy a more pleasant and safer school.

1. An elevator was constructed for the handicapped. 2. Heavy machinery became a common sight. 3. There was much debris and rubble from the reconstruction project.

The athletes at Nova made many waves this year.

SPORTS

A Tidal Wave Of Skill

(Ath'lēt) Definition: One trained in exercises or games requiring physical strength, skill, and effort.

No better definition could be used to describe Nova's athletes. To be successful, all three of these elements have to be balanced evenly. The reason why Nova was so successful was because some of the finest athletes from the three high schools attended here.

Sports in which one could participate in ranged all the way from cross country to golf to basketball. People tried out for all sorts of sports. Whether they were big or small, they gave it their best shot.

It was hard work and determination that was reflected in Nova's athletes, such as Nova's Gold Football, who were ranked number one in their league.

Nova's athletes undoubtedly made waves in their skill, speed, and sportsmanship.

A Battle To The Finish

The White Warriors ended with a 3-3 season, and they fought all the way. It started with a bang when they defeated the Purple Vikings. The next week's defeat against West Valley brought bitter feelings from the players, but then things started looking up when they crushed Las Plumas and held Anderson back for two wins in a row. Unfortunately, they lost the last two games to Red Bluff and the Gold Panthers. Overall it was a great season, and the coaches expected as much from such a fast team with a strong defense. Coach Bill Asnicar said, "I hope the team had as much fun as we did, and I'm sure some of them will play junior varsity football next year."

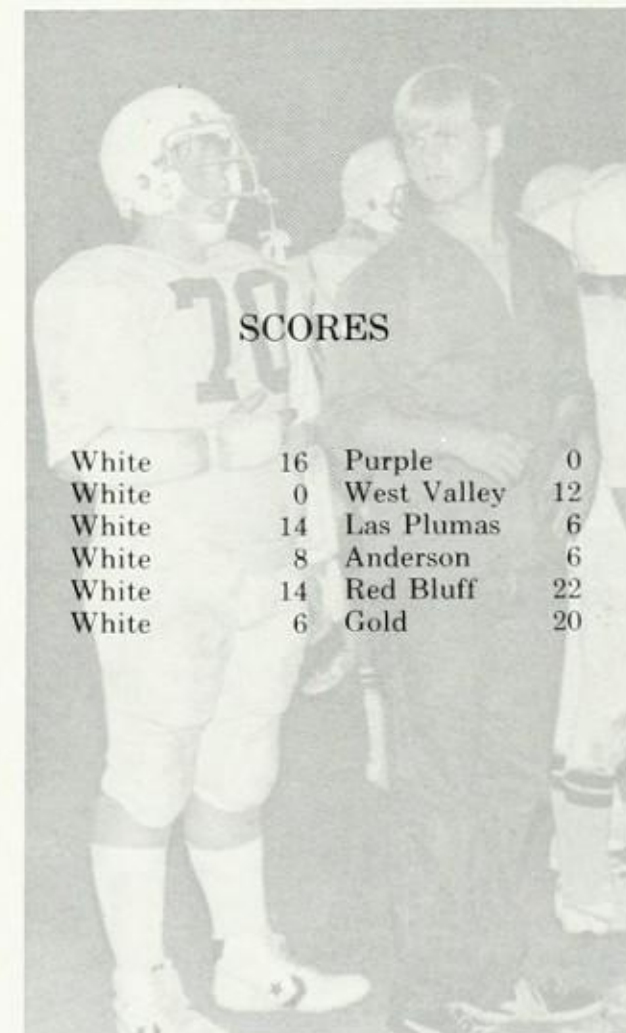

Each game they played was very aggressive. They worked as a team. "We worked really hard and were enthusiastic," said Scott Porter. Their play that was the most fun was a bounce pass where the quarterback, Brian Seamans, threw a bounce pass to Nick Greer, wingback, who ran the ball for about 20 yards before being tackled. Each and every player gave it their all to produce the power and strength needed in the games. It took teamwork and courage for the Warriors as it was "A Battle to the Finish."

Pushing For Victory

Coaches, Mr. Lon McCasland and Mr. Frank Dewald, pushed their boys to win. With two hours of practicing a day, three days a week, they finished the season with 2 victories and 5 loses.

It hasn't been a great year for the team, but they gave a lot of effort. Mr. McCasland talked about his team, "They did really well. If they could have put more out during the week, the games would have been easier, but they never quit!" Brian Rhodes, a player on the team, stated, "We're not worked too hard, the coaches only expect us to do our best." Then he added, "When we feel like giving up, our coaches are the ones who keep us going." As a spectator and cheerleader, Rita Suchanek said, "They gave it their all, so it doesn't matter if they won or lost; their will-power made up for it."

Hard Work Pays Off With Gold

After coaches Jim Schwerdt and Clay Erro picked forty out of the hundred and fifty students that tried out, practiced them over an hour and a half a day, and gave it their best effort, you can believe that they were slightly disappointed about not being able to keep up with last year's undefeated team.

They gave it their best shot, and when Travis Misner was asked what keep him going he commented, "The desire to be the best." While Jason Sehon said plainly, "Willpower."

The team's most valuable player turned out to be Chris Kuykendall, who played good offense and defense. Besides being good on the field, he was a very emotional leader.

Even though the coaches didn't expect Chris Guerrero to play as well as he did, he surprised them and did a good job with offense, defense, nose guard, and turned out to be a great defensive lineman. With all of this, Chris was considered the most improved player.

Looking at the overall picture, Gold did well coming away winning 5 and losing 2. But as stated by Mr. Schwerdt, "The players that stuck out the season were fun to work with, and they gave us probably the best possible effort they could."

White Glows

The white volleyball team ended the season with a 6-12 record in the league and a 1-8 in the tournament. They practiced one and a half hours a day, 4 days a week. The hardest game they played was against Central Valley. Their best game was between Liberty Christian because everyone did very well.

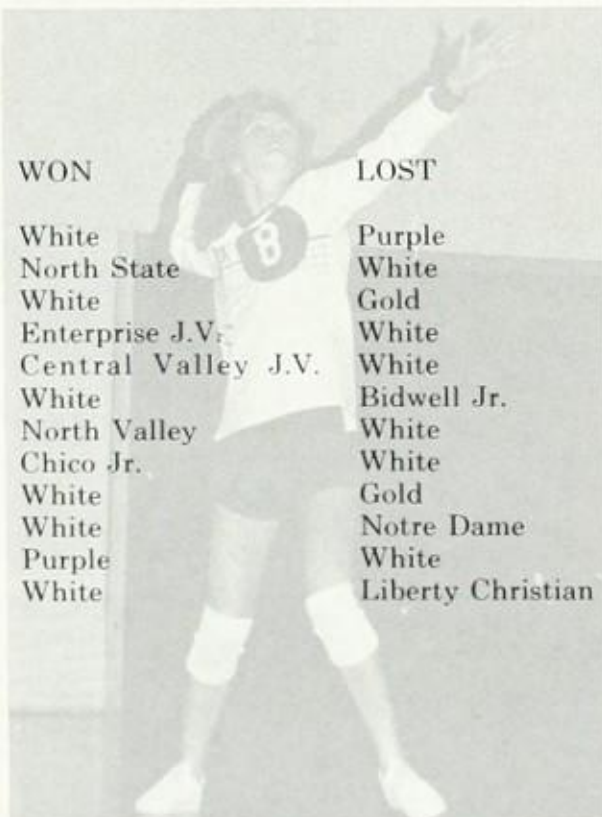

Although they needed a little work on their passing, the team's greatest strengths were serving and spiking. "This has been a very rewarding season for me, and I think the team feels the same way," said Coach Bob Kerr.

The team's most valuable player was Jennifer Valles. She was one of the hardest workers and was very serious in practice and in the games. There were no superstars, but everybody excelled in the games. "We work as a team, not as individuals," said Amy Kimbrough. They played very well and made the school proud. The student body agreed that "White Glowed."

Grace Under Pressure

Volleyball is a game of grace, skill, and coordination. All of which Nova's Purple Volleyball Team possessed! Although the season started out slowly, it picked up with a game against Bidwell which was the hardest game of the year. The strong offence and defense carried them on to victory.

Mrs. Rita Osborne, the coach of the team said, "Everybody on the team has improved greatly and they played as a team." The most improved player of the year was Rebecca Cilente. The captains of the team were Shanna Walton and Karen Henderson. All of the girls played well.

Gold Gives It Their Best Shot

Twelve girls out of fifty-four were chosen for the gold team with one being dropped for medical reasons.

Being comparable to last year's team, as stated by Coach Sheila Comer, gold volleyball gave it their all, coming away with an 8-3 losing record. Notre Dame proved to be the easiest opponent with Chico being the most difficult since, "Being an university town, Chico has top notch quality coaching," stated Mrs. Comer.

Sommer Shaffer and Michelle Johnston improved dramatically after dedicated practice from 3:45 to 5:00 on weekdays with Kae Saecho and Monica Carmona being the most valuable players for the team.

Finally, at the end of the season, the highlight was a trip to the Central Valley Tournament on November eighth.

Panthers Go The Extra Mile

Cross Country was a great success this year. It was Bruce Makinson's tenth year of coaching Cross Country.

Nova had 11 people on the team- 6 boys and 5 girls. They were talented students who worked hard. They attended nine meets. The boys placed 3rd in the J.V. division, and they placed 2nd in the freshmen section division. The girls placed 3rd in the varsity division league. There was a total of 23 schools that met for the section finals.

The team's greatest strength was their hard work and talent. One weakness was the team had a problem with injuries. 6 out of 11 runners were injured during the season. Nova should be proud of such athletes as the Cross Country team; they ran their share and more.

Spirits High, Scores Low

Boys' White Basketball team was not a complete loss. They practiced hard but victory always seemed to be out of reach. Their coach was Mr. Pliny Jackson. There was a total of 15 students on the team.

They practiced daily throughout the season. They worked hard and stayed in great shape. Most of the team agreed that the cheerleaders helped them make it through a game.

By the end of the season all the team players agreed everyone had improved. Kenny Tze said, "It just wasn't our year." Maybe they didn't win a lot of games, but their sportsmanship was the best.

When one thinks of Girls' White Basketball, one thinks of aggressiveness, hard work, and perseverance. The team, consisting of eleven players, had a 10-3 record. Their greatest strength was defense. Karrie Vaught was the most improved player because of her aggressiveness, but everyone had done very well throughout the year. The highlight of the season was the game against Bidwell in the Bidwell tournament. The girls won a point by calling a double time-out.

"It's been great being involved with Nova students and as far as the team goes, I have a great bunch of girls," said Coach Ron Montarbo. He has been coaching basketball for three years. This is his second year working with girls. "This year has been especially fun because we have a great coach who knows what he's doing. That's what makes the team work," replied Shanna Walton.

All in all, this was a very rewarding season for Girls' White Basketball. "We're a pretty good team," said Gina Dias. "We did have our 'bad games' at times but overall, we did great!"

Purple Proves They're Champs

The Boys' Purple Basketball team came out of the season with a 8-5 win-loss record. The team had a lot of fun achieving this goal and part of the credit goes to Coach Emmett Koerperich. The highlight of the season was when they beat Anderson 45-41 in a game of power and skill.

Purple had many strengths. Speed and agility were among them. Even though they were a good team, all teams have their weaknesses. The team had no height, a good thing to have if you're a basketball team.

At the beginning of the season Coach Koerperich focused on putting the team together, building their confidence, and spirit, and having fun. He always expected the team to do as well as they did. "The season was fun and I enjoyed doing it." said Coach Emmett Koerperich.

The most valuable player was Brian Seamens and the most improved player was Chris Hall. The most exciting game was when Chris Kuykendall scored 19 and Brian Seamens scored 18 points against Anderson.

It Wasn't As Easy As It Looked

The girls' purple basketball team had a season of ups and downs. The team didn't have a bad season, but it wasn't an exceptional one either. Their greatest victory was when they upset Nova's white team 46 to 25. Their worst loss was when they were defeated 32 to 13 by Chico. Coach Mrs. Rita Osborne felt that their greatest dominate point was the girls' strong defense. Their weak point, on the other hand, was the team's shortcoming for good offense. Mrs. Osborne said that she didn't have one most valuable player; she had two; they were Lisa Evanhoe and Jeanette Washington.

The team put out a lot of devotion and hard work, but it just didn't seem to pay off as well as it could have this season.

Gold Shines Through Defeat

The boys' gold team's hour and a half practice a day didn't get them the record they were looking for. They came away winning three and losing 13.

None of the games were easy, but the most difficult game they played was against Enterprise's J.V. that ended up in a score of 55-37 Enterprise.

This year's new coach, Phil Rider, stated, "Every kid was the most valuable and everyone was the most improved, especially Tim Bade who improved in his self-confidence."

The highlight of the season was playing against Nova's White team. Both games were close with Gold winning the first and White winning the second by one point.

Mr. Rider also added, "The record doesn't always tell you everything about a team, and if I had to pick another team I'd pick a team of kids like I've got any day."

Gold Glows With Victory

The season started out better than anyone could imagine; the Girls' Gold Basketball Team won the first 9 out of 10 league games. Because of their superb playing, they easily defeated their opponents. Their proficiency was due to practicing five days a week. Coach, Mr. Bill Wagner, felt that practicing everyday was absolutely essential and their record proved it. He also emphasized how his girls acted as a unit. The two captains of the team, both of which were outstanding players, Lori Seaholm and Rhonda Britton. The hardest games they played were against the other Nova teams because of their rivalry.

Weekend Entertainment

The year of 1986-87 will be remembered well by the students who attended Nova. This was our first year of high school and we had to act like young adults, but not forget how to have fun. It seemed that on Fridays everybody was just a little bit more anxious for the bell to ring at the end of the day. When it finally rang, the halls roared with talk about plans for the weekend. Some students' ideas of a good time were going to the mall and then a movie afterwards or to set out to the latest dance club, The Pound. The Pound catered to teenagers so we could have a good time with people our own age. No matter what we did, we came back on Monday bragging about our special weekend.

The yearbook staff worked very hard this year selling ads.

ADVERTISEMENTS

A Wave Of Support

The yearbook staff worked very hard selling ads. Selling advertising is extremely time-consuming; they covered all the businesses in the area and in Central Valley and Palo Cedro raising over 3,000 dollars.

The money earned from selling ads was what helped make the yearbook great. If ads were not sold, the yearbooks would cost close to twenty dollars, instead of the sixteen or fifteen that was paid, and the yearbook would not have some of the special features, such as other colors than just black and white, and it wouldn't have had artwork or special effects.

Ads in yearbooks are a very good way for local businesses to become more well-known in the community and to gain business from local patrons. Buying an ad is also a good way for a business to show support for the school and the students.

1. Karalee von Seggern and Liz Bonnett put together a page of ads for the yearbook. 2. Payments for the yearbook ads are carefully kept track of by Jennifer Haught.

But anyways if it wasn't for this shit hole we'd have never met, never did any of the things that we did together. We could of had alot more fun had we got closer at the beginning of the year, but hey who gives a shit, right? Well we're gonna have to party alot this summer since we live so close together. Well today a day I'll never forget. Jayson + Michelle were caught not together remember this..... sex
